The Honorable [INSERT REPRESENTATIVE'S NAME]
United States House of Representatives
Washington, DC

RE: Support an urgent extension of Temporary Protected Status (TPS) for El Salvador

Dear Representative [INSERT REPRESENTATIVE'S LAST NAME],

As a constituent and a supporter of the Salvadoran-American community, I strongly urge you to support an extension of Temporary Protected Status (TPS) for El Salvador ahead of the upcoming September 9, 2026 deadline.

This request is grounded in federal law, fiscal responsibility, and current conditions in El Salvador. Under federal law, TPS may be extended when a country cannot safely accommodate the return of its nationals due to ongoing extraordinary conditions. While the country has made significant progress in improving public security, its institutions continue to operate under a prolonged State of Exception that has strained judicial and administrative capacity. As a result, El Salvador lacks the institutional and economic capacity to safely absorb more than 200,000 long-term returning residents.

Many long-term Salvadoran TPS holders also have no practical pathway to permanent legal status under current immigration law. Requiring them to leave the United States could trigger lengthy reentry bars, even when they may otherwise qualify for family- or employment-based immigration options.

Allowing TPS to expire would have serious economic, fiscal, and humanitarian consequences for communities across the United States and U.S. taxpayers:

- Fiscal Burden on Taxpayers: According to DHS data cited by congressional leadership, the estimated cost of detaining and removing Salvadoran TPS holders would total approximately $3 billion ($18,042 per individual), before accounting for the immediate loss of $1.5 billion in annual tax revenues.
- Severe Economic Disruption: Over 90% of Salvadoran TPS holders are active in the U.S. workforce, contributing $5.4 billion annually to the U.S. GDP. Their sudden removal would trigger immediate labor shocks in critical industries facing chronic shortages, including construction, healthcare, and food services.
- Family and Humanitarian Impact: More than 150,000 U.S.-citizen children depend on Salvadoran TPS parents. Terminating this status forces these families into the cruel dilemma of forced separation or relocation to an unfamiliar country experiencing severe systemic strain.

Extending TPS is the most practical approach to uphold our nation's legal commitments, protect domestic economic interests, and prevent a humanitarian crisis. I respectfully ask that you publicly support this extension by joining the Members of Congress who signed the McGovern Congressional TPS Letter urging the Department of Homeland Security to act. I also encourage you to consider joining the bipartisan Congressional El Salvador Caucus to strengthen engagement on these important bilateral issues.

Thank you for your leadership, your service, and your attention to this urgent matter.

Sincerely,
